

DAILY CAPITAL'S BIG DOT COUNTING CONTEST

Elegant and Costly Prizes Will Be Given Away—High-Class Piano Will Be Given to One Who Comes Nearest to Guessing Number of Dots

Starting today The Daily Capital will inaugurate the greatest subscription contest campaign ever attempted by a newspaper at the early age of two years.

The great value of the prizes offered and the liberality of the conditions under which they will be awarded insure a ready response on the part of those who will be ambitious to win the coveted honors. That the contest will be conducted in a fair and impartial manner is the guarantee of the Capital. The system that has been arranged to keep track of your count is without equal, and the management will be in the hands of people trained in the work.

All over the continent energetic people are winning prizes by means of a little extra effort expended in behalf of their favorite newspaper. The question is frequently asked "How can a newspaper afford such a large expenditure for prizes?" The answer is very simple and to a newspaper, but to others it is more difficult to understand. The Capital will answer the question as briefly and as clearly as possible. Circulation is ordinarily obtained in a very costly way. Travelling salesmen are employed at liberal salaries and their expenses and railway fares often swallow up the income they produce. A contest of this magnitude is very expensive of course, but the large number of subscriptions secured, together with the general good feeling aroused, means very much, so a big contest proves a sound business venture for a newspaper.

HOW TO ENTER THE CONTEST.

If you wish to enter the race for the piano send in your name with $1.00 at once, together with your count. This is not a gamble. You receive the Daily Capital for three months and have the privilege of trying for the prize piano, all for $1.00. By paying a year's subscription to the Daily Capital ($4.00) you may send in four counts which gives you four chances to win the grand prize.

The Capital has printed a large number of receipt books for the use of the solicitors. These will be sent to you with full explanation of what you are to do as soon as we receive your name and address, and will be delivered to those who can call at the Contest Office. The system of accounts which will be used during the contest demands that the receipt book be used by all solicitors.

"AN IDEA IN ACTION, WORTH TWO IN THE MIND."

So get busy now. One day's business at the start may mean a few dollars to you. There are hundreds of people in Edmonton who do not at present take the Capital, those are the ones who will not see our splendid offer advertised. There are others who read it and say they have not the time to send in counting.

Let the children do the counting if you find you have not the time. They may all get a cash prize, we expect that they will, but give them a chance to show their ability to earn a piano, a trip east, a gold watch, a cash prize, a set of Austrian china, a kitchen set to give mother for Christmas, or any of the valuable prizes offered by the Capital.

Fill in the coupon in the full page ad, and send a year's subscription to the Capital. That will enable you to get in.

The Contest Department is located at the ground floor of the Capital building on Howard Avenue. All contest and subscription business should be addressed, Capital Contest Manager, Edmonton, Alta. Phone 4411.

THIS IS MY BIRTHDAY

A. A. ADDS.
 Alvey A. Adds, who has spent forty years in the diplomatic service of the United States, was born in Astoria, N. Y., November 27, 1842. He was born a deaf mute and learned the use of his vocal organs by purely artificial methods. After he had grown to manhood he learned a partial release of hearing. After he had acquired spoken language he became an accomplished actor. At the age of 28 he was appointed secretary of legation at Madrid. In 1877 he was transferred to the State Department at Washington, where his scholarship and his abilities as a translator won him promotion. In 1898 he has been second assistant secretary of state, the highest permanent position in the service. By reason of his long connection with the office of state Mr. Adds is said to be the best informed man in the American diplomatic service.

SIR JAMES WHITNEY'S MEDIOCRE INTELLIGENCE

The most recent argument against the single tax method of collecting municipal revenue advanced by Sir James Whitney is that single tax may be all right in the west where a large part of the land is held for the purpose of speculation, but that it would not fit the east, where the greater part of the land is held by farmers for the purpose of farming.

Whitney states a hypothetical case to show how a farmer having two thousand dollars worth of buildings on his farm might have to pay as much taxes as a rich man living next door who was farming merely for pastime and who had buildings to the value of ten thousand. According to Whitney the farmer owning the two thousand buildings would get considerably the worst of it under single tax, the rich man escaping taxation on a ten thousand value on which under the present system of assessing improvements he now pays taxes.

Whitney's argument is the usual one advanced against land taxation, an argument which requires a species of mental blindness in order to be accepted.

While Whitney is citing hypothetical cases he should cite cases for both sides. Suppose, for instance, that the ten thousand dollar buildings belonged not to a rich man from the city as he provides, but to an industrious farmer who through a life-time of intelligent farming methods, had placed himself in the position that he could improve his hundred-acre to that extent, and that the two thousand dollar buildings belonged to a less industrious farmer whose methods had been less intelligent, and who had succeeded in adding only that amount to the improvement on his place both men having access to the possibilities of a hundred-acre farm. It is reasonable that the industrious farmer who, by his industry, intelligence and enterprise, had improved his place ten thousand dollars' worth should be taxed a tax on his improvements while the slothful and careless farmer who had access to the same opportunity should escape?

In the language of Sir James himself, "the proposition is too outrageous for consideration."

The point about the land tax is that it is a tax on opportunity, while the taxation of improvements is a fine levied against industry.

The logical ultimate of the land tax is that if the holder of the opportunity fails to sufficiently realize upon the opportunity, his possession to prevent the tax he will be compelled to give it up to some one who will make better use of it.

It is the fundamental principle which Whitney himself states when he says that the tax on land is a fine levied for speculation. The speculator takes no advantage of the opportunity in his possession, but under a single tax he would have to pay for the privilege of holding that opportunity against some one who would. The difference between the speculator who takes no advantage of his opportunity and the slothful farmer who takes only partial advantage is in a matter of degree.

Even so Sir Whitney's hypothesis of the rich man who comes from the city and is ten thousand dollars' worth of improvements to a heretofore unimproved farm. Where is the improvement in taxing him for so doing? By taxing him the improvement is in no degree lessens the opportunity of any one else. The fact that he has money enough to do so is no indication against him and should not make him subject to a fine in the shape of a tax. The buildings were not there before he came. He places them there himself and by so doing adds to the value of every farm on the road. It is because the speculative and able to the grandeur of the scene they should be taxed for that?

The place to tax the rich man who builds the ten thousand dollar house is not on the ten thousand dollar house but on the opportunity through which he becomes rich. The rich man owns lands or mines or timber lands or railway franchises or some other class of opportunity. Single tax would tax him on these opportunities wherever he held them. No other system of taxation would or could.

Whitney's utterances on single tax have at least one advantage. They give an opportunity for a correct assessment of the mental calibre of the man. When it is taken into consideration that he is the acknowledged leader of a great political movement and in control of the affairs of a province, and yet he utters utterances on such a commonplace question as the single tax, it is a fair estimate of the kind of men the conservative politicians will allow to control the affairs of their party and indicate how much chance there is of advance with such a party in control.

RAILWAY ADVANCE ON STREET RAILWAY EXTENSION

In putting himself on record in favor of first looping up the present street railway lines before making any more extensions to outside subdivisions, Superintendent Knight follows the ideas of his two predecessors, Chas. Taylor who installed the system, and Mr. Biswaner, who followed him as superintendent, and at the same time is giving the only rational advice on the street railway situation.

In spite of an enormous increase of traffic the Edmonton street railway shows a deficit, not large enough to be alarming, but a deficit nevertheless, where there should be a surplus. The reason is evident. The Edmonton system is a series of cash lines on which a proper time table is impossible. The street railway is overgrown from those who walk to more than the one on the deficit. With loop lines a proper schedule could be maintained down town, and residents in outlying sections of the city could get home by taking a car in either way on the loop, thereby relieving the overcrowding.

UNIONISTS ARE UP IN ARMS OVER THE PREMIER'S DECREE

Lloyd George's Land Valuation Scheme Is Declared Invalid by the Courts—Government Assumed Too Much Power—King and Queen Off for Delhi

(By W. Manifold Rhodes.)

LONDON, Nov. 27.—The Unionists are up in arms against Premier Asquith's threat to use the guillotine (closure) on all debates affecting the Home Rule bill for Ireland. The Morning Post, one of the most radical of the London papers, has been most outspoken in its criticism of the government's action. It has been obvious to everyone who heard Mr. Asquith the other night that he had Home Rule in his mind when he announced that the guillotine was in future to be resorted to as part of the established procedure of the House. This clearly means, says the paper, that, having deprived the Second Chamber of the power of referring a Home Rule bill to the people, the government means to force that measure through a gagged House of Commons.

The notorious "Form IV," eleven million copies of which were sent to poverty-stricken owners by Somerset House, with orders to fill them up for the purposes of Mr. Lloyd George's land valuation scheme, has now after more than a year has passed, been declared invalid.

This was the decision given by Mr. Justice Horridge in the High Court in the case in which Mr. John Dyson, a Yorkshire property owner, claimed against the Attorney-General for a declaration that a person who had been served with a notice requiring him to fill up Form IV, issued under the Finance Act 1909-10, was under no obligation to do so.

The Attorney-General agreed to submit to a decision similar to one given by Mr. Justice Warrington in the case of Burdick vs. the Attorney-General, in which the judge held that Form VIII, which the judge held that Form VIII was invalid, and that persons served with it were under no obligation to fill it up. At the same time the Attorney-General gave notice of appeal, and stated that an appeal in the Burdick case would be heard in a few days' time.

The result of the Dyson case excited the liveliest interest among politicians and the opinion of Unionists was that the government have suffered a severe blow to their prestige in agreeing to accept the decision that Form IV is invalid, even if it is reversed on appeal.

"The decision is simply another 'face' for the government and their land taxes scheme," Mr. E. G. Prentiss, M.P., who led the Bill against the land taxes in the House of Commons, told a press representative.

"People will now realize more clearly that although the Budget gave the government unlimited powers of taxation, they have assumed powers which were not authorized by the Budget, and have thereby illegally put private individuals all over the land to endless trouble and expense."

"The declaration that Form IV is invalid means that the government, in issuing this demand for information, played a gigantic game of bluff, and that they have actually bluffed everybody into sending in such particulars as have been furnished on this form and Form VIII.

"It is only a question of a short space of time before there will be an irresistible demand for a public inquiry, and the whole of the land taxes part of the Budget will be repealed."

The Queen's personal jewels, and the many precious jeweled orders or be worn by their Majesties upon occasions of state, will also form part of the immensely valuable collection in the care of the Keeper of the Jewels in Medina.

Vigilance Association.
The Duchess of Albany was present at the annual meeting of the National Vigilance Association and International Bureau for the Suppression of the White Slave Trade held at the Mansion House the other afternoon. The chair was taken by the Lord Mayor, Sir Vevey Strong, and others who attended were the Lady Mayors, Lady Laura Hobbs, Bishop Ryde, Dean

MAYOR SHAW, L. SHAW of Indianapolis, who has been warning on the high cost of living, who was seen in a selling position to the people of the city, without going to the middleman.

Westminster, the Rev. James Gow, Mr. P. S. Bullock, and Mr. D. L. Alexander, K. S.

The Lord Mayor said that the society sprang out of the great effort of one man, Mr. Stodd, who had by a courageous, journalistic enterprise sought to reveal some of the most terrible conditions of the social life in London and other big towns of that date. The people who had been made acquainted for the first time with those evils thought that a society should be formed to overcome them, and to secure for the future a better condition of life. For some time the work of the society was in the direction of repression, but during later years the preventive work has received an ever increasing share of its operations.

The Earl of Aberdeen, who had promised to be present, had been prevented by an official engagement in Ireland, but he sent the following letter: "The work of the Association in suppressing noxious literature should be continued, and the society should be formed to overcome them, and to secure for the future a better condition of life. For some time the work of the society was in the direction of repression, but during later years the preventive work has received an ever increasing share of its operations."

Lady Laura Ridding moved a resolution rejecting in the success of the society and the extension of the work to North and South America and Egypt, and urging the committee "to extend their labors to the Dominions Overseas, in order that they might be brought into line with Europe on this most important question." She said that the extension was one of the need of which no one would doubt who realized the position in the colonies of France, the colonies of Germany, in Canada and the other colonies provision was made for them, but it was impossible to make the new province for such provision to be made in those great mushroom towns and in places where non-European people mostly congregated, a resolution was carried.

By the death of barjading a few days ago of Mrs. Margaret E. Noble (Sister Nivola) there has passed away one who succeeded in a very remarkable way in identifying herself with the life and sentiment of India. In 1878, when she went to the East, Margaret Noble was a brilliant young woman of thirty, an eager educationalist, with a new and absorbing enthusiasm for India, called forth by that powerful personality the Swami Vivekananda. She took a home in the Hindu quarter of Calcutta, and began modestly with a small school for Indian girls.

But Miss Noble's energies soon sought other channels of expression. She addressed large audiences in various cities on Indian life, ancient and modern; and there are many who think that her voice was the first to give definite and challenging form to the religion of Hinduism. She wrote, as she spoke, with a strong and vivid power of expression, and on almost every subject. Her books, especially "The Web of Indian Life," and "Grades of Hinduism," have been widely read in England and America; but none who knew Margaret Noble well in life have ever thought of them as an adequate reflection of her true powers of mind. In India, it is no exaggeration to say, her name was held in almost universal reverence.

DEATH OF PREMIER CAUSE OF CHANGE

Essential Features of Nationalism Laid Down Will Be Maintained But Not to the Degree Suggested by Late Premier Stolypin—Duma in Session

(Olebo Cable Service) London, Nov. 25.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the "Times" says: "M. Kokovtsov will on his return from the Crimea find the Duma about to enter upon its last session. The tragic death of M. Stolypin and the assurance of a general election have naturally brought the whole field of Russian politics into sharp perspective. The Nationalist movement, fostered by the late Premier, is subjected to re-examination. Whatever the underlying motives for its inception may have been, it is undeniable, except among interested partisans, that Nationalism has acquired immense prestige in the country. In common with all political ideas it has been encouraged by unnecessary extremes; but to the average Russian they do not overshadow its vital principles. M. Stolypin's memory will live long, as that of the first Russian statesman to appeal to national sentiment among the people and to instil national feeling into the agents and representatives of the government. Russian Nationalism in its best sense may yet prove to be the long-sought 'golden bridge' between the bureaucracy and the people. And M. Kokovtsov is too much of a patriot and a statesman to ignore or neglect the possibilities of the great political idea bequeathed to him by his predecessor. Admitting the correctness of these premises, it will not be presuming too much to outline the general aspects of the political future of Russia under the Premiership of Mr. Kokovtsov. The essential features of Nationalism will be retained, but without undue intrusion of purely class interests. In other words, the specific Nationalism of the semi-bureaucratic, semi-bureaucratic faction which has arrogated to itself the name of the Nationalist party in the Duma will no longer be a dominant and the proposal to incorporate two Finnish parishes—probably also the bill for the creation of a Russian province out of the border districts of Poland—may be expected to lapse. The Duma will, on the other hand, lose no time in passing the bills by which Finland is called upon to contribute her share to the expenses of national defence and to establish equality of rights between Russians and Finns. The Finns themselves agree that it is both right and proper that this should be so in principle; but they have unfortunately raised so many obstacles and invoked so many qualms and reservations on both subjects that Russian sentiment and Russian feeling almost entirely support the necessity of imperial legislation thereon. As regards Poland the position is modified by recent changes in Polish politics. The irreconcilable attitude of the National Democrats, displayed in their boycott of the state schools and university, has ended in a strong reaction towards a more conciliatory policy. Russia will respond by a considerable modification of the course hitherto pursued towards the Poles. In purely internal matters the policy of the government may be sketched as follows—Unsettled race in exalting the abuses of the present police department, disclosed in connection with the Kieff tragedy; greater tolerance towards the universities, and as far as possible a more lenient, though not the least firm administrative 'touch' all round. In the treatment of economic questions, the preponderant interests of agriculture will, of course, receive foremost attention; the agrarian policy initiated by M. Stolypin will be developed by the promotion of co-operative societies and, generally speaking, by stimulus to public and private initiative and enterprise. The education of the masses forms the background of all these measures. The growing claims of trade and industry will find an adept exponent in the person of M. Kokovtsov, but the labor question will be a feature of the session, and it may be taken for granted that no experiments in the nature of compulsory 'nationalization' of trade will be attempted. On the other hand, it is doubtful whether the Jewish problem, co-related therewith, will undergo radical revision. The time has now come to handle so knotty a subject. There will, presumably, be no appreciable change in the attitude of the government towards it left or opposition parties; but from the very day on which M. Kokovtsov assumed the Premiership a native association became apparent in the tone of the controversy, traces in the 'Biossya,' and it must be admitted that they gained in effectiveness and poise in infusing in effectiveness and poise. In dealing with the purely reactionary parties, the government will find its hands considerably strengthened by the growing recognition that under estimations devotion to the Monarchy of the crown they in reality conceal tendencies of a demagogic and revolutionary character.

The New York Sun's London correspondent says that Sir Edward Grey and Lloyd George are enthusiastic supporters of the suffragette cause, and it is expected Lloyd George will run a strong suffrage campaign in 1912, taking the line of what may be called household suffrage.

"What all the World's a Seeking!"

Article No. 1

THE ANSWER IS EASY—MONEY! It may sound sordid or even sinister, but whether the search be sordid or sinister or in vain depends upon the seeker. Money itself has no qualities. It is merely the universal medium of exchange, without which we can do NOTHING. And since it is the universal necessity, the race for it has also become universal, with the goal seldom to the swift.

It is those who have failed in the race that have invented all the latter-day doctrines of social inequality, and the injustice of modern economic conditions. And there are very few of these doctrinaires who would not lay down their theories a willing sacrifice upon the altar of the Goddess of Fortune, if only she would smile upon them. But, despite all the doctrines and all the theories, the practical fact remains insistent, that money is man's chief material necessity.

The practical question these days is how to make money the surest and quickest. The answer here is also easy. The surest and quickest way to make money is through those enterprises that create wealth.

Western civilization will serve as a ready and convincing illustration. The wealth of the two great American nations, Canada and the United States is enormous—almost beyond calculation. Yet all of this incalculable wealth has been created in a single century. And at the dawn of the Nineteenth Century, the stake was all there, any part of it ready for the man who had the vision and courage to claim it.

This is but a nation-wide and century-long illustration of what is even today a personal application. There is yet an Empire to build, with its cities and railroads and mills and merchant places. And there is yet the opportunity for the man who will, to have a part in its building. There is a stake as great as the Eastern Provinces, or the Mississippi Valley, waiting for its claimants. And that Empire which is now in the making is Western Canada.

Here in this new Empire is the richest soil, the finest timber, the greatest and most varied wealth of minerals, and the most magnificent waterways in all the known world. No one who knows Western Canada doubts but that in the Empire upon which the sun never sets, this is the Land of Opportunity.

The story of the future industrial development of Western Canada can all be told in one word—Organization. It is a national problem, the Organization of this new land. And never in all the history of Industrial Development has that magic Counterpart of Twentieth Century progress deeper significance than in its application to Western Canada today.

1. The Industrial Organization of Western Canada includes these elements:
  1. The Natural resources of the West.
  2. The Capital of the East.
  3. Management, in which the whole world will be laid under tribute.
- It is because Capital has never had such opportunities, nor the Genius for Organization, such a find, that the Capital and ability of the British Empire are turning today toward this new land of opportunity.

And Capital has a different application in Western Canada. It is not centralized Capital that is being invited, but the smaller contributions of individuals. For Western Canada is destined to be the Empire of Individualism. And the spirit of individual opportunity breathes in the air of this new land. It is the call of the men of the West to the men of the East: "Come over into Macedonia and Help Us."

What this opportunity means will be well illustrated in a story which will be told in this space during the next five days. It is the story of one of the greatest Industrial Institutions of the West, which is now rapidly rushing to conclusion. It is the story also of an Organization Enterprise that has no parallel in Canada or the United States. Here is the story told without names or details:

A few years ago two young men, Western Scouts of Fortune, journeyed by pack horse one hundred and fifty miles from a Western outpost town, in search of—they knew not what—anything that could be conjured into coin. They found a vast deposit of a certain mineral which enters into the manufacture of an almost universally used commodity. They staked these claims and waited. For another mineral also was needed for this commodity.

A few years later a pioneer railroad that was pushing its way westward passed over the very heart of these claims. In approaching this property, the builders of the road made a cut through a little muskeg lake, that was higher than the surrounding country. When the lake was drained, a huge deposit of the second required mineral was revealed. And the two young men who had now added four others to their Company, staked this claim also. Meanwhile, the little outpost town had grown to a thriving city. Another railroad had projected its line westward, and right where these claims lay, this other transcontinental was only one hundred and fifty feet from its older rival.

Then came an Organizer. This whole proposition was thoroughly investigated. It was determined that this universally used commodity could be manufactured from these two materials at a profit, due to peculiar local conditions—more than two hundred per cent. on the cost of manufacture. A great Company was formed. The Lieutenant-Governor of a Western Province became its Chairman. The best business men of the community became its directors. More than Four Hundred Thousand Dollars of Capital was subscribed in a city of thirty thousand people. A great manufacturing plant of twenty buildings was commenced. A wealthy capitalist who had retired from business put on his working clothes again and took up the organization of a model workmen's town. One Hundred men are now employed in building this great mill. All of this was done without the co-operation of a single man of great wealth. And now the co-operation of Canadians everywhere is being invited upon these representations:

1. That the shares will advance from $150 (their present price) to $150 (much less than their ultimate value) within a year.
2. That the great factory will be in operation in October next and will pay a dividend of more than 25 per cent. to the shareholders of the Company.

This is the first chapter of this Industrial Romance of the New West, for the truth of which the best men of a great Western Province will vouch. There will be five more chapters and they will appear in this space during the five remaining days of this week.

ANTI-SEMITISM IS REVIVED IN RUSSIA

ASSASSINATION OF STOLYPIN IS MADE PRETEXT FOR ANOTHER OUTBURST OF ANTI-SEMITISM

St. Petersburg, Nov. 26.—A very regrettable revival of anti-Semitism is noticeable all over Russia. The murder of M. Stolypin by a man of Jewish origin serves as a fresh pretext for the resumption of Jew-baiting in the Russian press, which is headed in the respect, as of old, by the "Novoye Vremya." The anti-Semitic propaganda is even being carried on at public meetings by a well known member of the Council of State, the Russian nobleman, Count Benckendorff. At a large assembly of the Russian National Club, in St. Petersburg, on last evening, a speech was made by the Count, in which he declared that the Jewish invasion of the Christian churches, the lecturer, who was much applauded, delivered a most violent attack on Jews generally, whom he charged, in particular, with having insinuated themselves into the service of the Russian orthodoxy and other churches and with having even risen to high clerical rank for the purpose of corrupting and occupying Christians.

Andrew Carnegie still heads the list of New York city with an assessment on personal property valued at $10,000,000 and real estate valued at $2,000,000. Since 1903 Mr. Carnegie's personal property has been assessed at a valuation of $5,000,000. His tax but next year will exceed $222,000.

There are 435 prizes to be given away for counting Dots, so you are bound to win one.

YANKEE DIPLOMAT DOONS THE FRILLS

APPEARS AT KAISER'S COURT RESPLENDENT IN OILY BUTTONS AND GOLD LACE

(Edna Cable Service)
Berlin, Nov. 26.—Considerable comment and not a little amusement have been caused in Berlin by the decision of the new United States Ambassador, Mr. Leishman, following in the footsteps of a former Ambassador, Mr. Charlesman Tower, that the members of the Embassy staff shall appear at the Kaiser's Court in uniforms instead of in the more elaborate black civilian society. At the reception, Leishman presented his credentials to the Kaiser and the members of the Embassy staff, with the exception of the Military Attaché, who wore his service uniform, were resplendent in brand new gait but, with no gala lace of the Charlesman Tower period.

The history of Mr. Charlesman Tower's uniform is somewhat interesting. It is said that when Mr. Tower represented the United States at the Court of the Czar he and his staff were refused admission to some court function because they made their appearance in ordinary civilian coats, the Emperor's staff in uniform being of opinion that no person not entitled to wear a uniform could possibly have the right of access to the august presence. The Ambassador was equal to the difficulty, and promptly started home, and his staff in uniform quite equal to any of the gorgeous costumes among the Czar's entourage. This uniform Mr. Tower brought with him from St. Petersburg to Berlin, where after a period of retirement under the name of Dr. Hill, it has now been brought into the light again by Mr. Leishman.

Father Stanton to Leave Ottawa College

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—The Ottawa College football team, which finished second in the intercollegiate union this season, was banqueted at the university tonight. It was announced that all the players except Jim Kennedy and Silver Quilly would be available next year, but that Father Stanton, the famous young coach, would be transferred shortly to Buffalo. Father Stanton was the brains of the college team this year, and without him the Ottawa students would never have been able to put up such a great race for the pennant. Nearly all the college players can vary to win from Argonauts on Saturday's final. Father Stanton says that the Varsity "system" has not been changed in the last four years, and that this, coupled with the varsity speed, will demoralize the interprovincial champions.

DISAGREES WITH SIR WM. RAMSAY

THINKS COAL SUPPLY WILL LAST LONGER THAN HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS

London, Nov. 25.—The fear expressed by Sir William Ramsay in his recent speech to the British Association that the coal supply of this country would be completely exhausted in 175 years was by no means borne out by Sir McKenna, the Home Secretary, in reply to questions in the House of Commons.

Sir McKenna said he noticed that Sir William's forecast of the probable duration of the coal supplies of the country did not take into consideration certain factors which have an important bearing on the question. In the first place, his estimate took no account of the large amount of coal in the fields improved at the time of the survey of the Royal Commission, nor of the amount of coal found below the depth of 4,000 feet, which the Commission took to be the present limit of workable coal.

These two sources the Commission estimated at over 22,000,000,000 and 2,000,000,000 tons respectively, or together nearly half as much as the amount of coal estimated to exist in the proved coal fields.

In the second place Sir William's estimate was based on the assumption that the rate of increase of output would become slower, to be followed by a period of stationary output, and then a general decline.

STREET RAILWAY SHORT OF POWER

UNLESS DECISIVE STEPS ARE TAKEN EDMONTON WILL BE AS USUAL WALK

With the little Robb engine at the power plant out of commission for good and 300 kilowatts of direct current eliminated, the power situation for street railway purposes is very serious, and drastic steps must be taken to find a supply. Superintendent Knist of the railway and Superintendent Huffman of the power plant were this morning instructed by the commissioners to get their heads together and devise a scheme whereby the street car system can be kept moving, also to wire for prices on machinery necessary to supply this much needed direct current.

With the little Robb engine working barely enough direct current to supply to operate the system, with no reserve. Now that this machine has quit for good, apparently, there is a shortage. Superintendent Huffman proposes to take the generator from the little Robb machine and attach it by belt to an old engine at the plant, provided all the parts of the old engine can be gathered together and the machine put in operation. A shaft and flywheel is missing but the department is on its trail. With this arrangement, the generator will be a belt driven machine and the power situation will, so far as direct current is concerned, be as it was before the Robb engine gave out.

Superintendent Knist recommends the purchase of a second hand rotary converter from St. Louis or New York, the entire outfit to cost something like $8,000. Commissioner Gandy objected to buying any second hand machinery. He feared to take chances on it. The only reason the railway superintendent recommended it was because it could be procured within a month while new machinery will take from four to five months to manufacture and delivery. The mayor stood at second hand machinery and no one favored it save in an emergency matter.

The railway superintendent would purchase converters to change alternating current to direct current. The street cars run on only direct current. The new turbine generator, the 2,000 kilowatt machine, makes alternating current.

Superintendent Huffman would purchase a new direct current machine of 2,000 kilowatt capacity to be stationed at the power plant. The rotary converters would be stationed by the railway superintendent in substations on the lines of his railway. Both the rotary converters and the new direct current machines are considered necessary by both superintendents.

Why Shortage.
Why is it that there is such a dire necessity for direct current at this time and why was not sufficient direct provided for all purposes during the summer, is a question that naturally arises in the mind of the ordinary citizen. The answer is that it was thought the new motor-generator set purchased and installed at the street car barn this last summer would be sufficient to provide the extra current necessary this winter. But it develops that this motor-generator set running far above its rated capacity is unable to do this. That the little

Robb engine would not stand the pace set for it was foreseen by the superintendent of the power house. This last spring he told the commissioners that this machine could not be depended upon and would go entirely out of commission sooner or later.

Steam Pipe Coming.
Steam pipe for the new turbine generator connections has been shipped and should be here inside of a week.

The installation of this pipe will permit the erection of the machine to complete their work which has been delayed by the tardiness of these steam connections. When this new turbine is finally operated there will be a superabundance of alternating current. This will not do the street railway any good because there are no machines to convert it to direct current.

KENTUCKY HORSEWOMAN

Mrs. Julius Walsh, the noted Kentucky horsewoman, who has been a successful exhibitor at various Horse Shows, and will again compete in the Horse show to be held at the Madison Square Garden, in New York City, is of the opinion that horses think, and that some of them are more brainy than men. "Of course, a horse thinks," said Mrs. Walsh in answer to a question. "Some of them have as much brains as some men. Of course, I don't mean to say that a horse has the same sort of intelligence as an educated man. As a matter of fact, any comparison is almost impossible. A horse has more real intelligence in many ways than a savage, but his intelligence lies along different lines. I think that the quality of a horse's intelligence is greatly influenced by its training. A horse that is patiently taught and trained is more intelligent than one that has never had any attention. The same thing is true of men. A black savage from the heart of Africa cannot be expected to exhibit intelligence equal to a highly cultivated American." Mrs. Walsh was Miss Clara Davis Bell of Lexington, Ky., one of the richest girls of the South.

FOUR REGISTER AT IMMIGRATION HALL

THIRTY ARRIVALS DURING THE PAST WEEK—MAYBE MORE AFTER INFORMATION

Only four persons were inmates at the immigration hall at the close of last week. At an time during the past summer was that institution for the accommodation of western home seekers so heavily deserted as it was this morning. Forty buskers left the hall during the past week. There were thirty-one arrivals. The number of actual registrations on the books of the hall, however, does not furnish a fair criterion by which to judge the number of people actually arriving in the city in search of homes in the surrounding district. While only thirty-one persons registered at the hall during the past week and spent one night or more under its roof the immigration office was visited by no less than 167 persons seeking information about various localities in the country tributary to Edmonton. These were people staying at hotels and boarding houses in the city while they were looking for land or positions.

CROW'S NEST COAL ORDERED BY CITY

CERTAIN AMOUNT OF BLACK DIAMONDS WILL BE STORED AT POWER PLANT

A supply of coal from the Crow's Nest district has been ordered by the city for the power plant. This coal is to be held in reserve at the plant. That this coal has been ordered developed at the commissioners' meeting this morning when a recommendation was read from the superintendent of the power plant recommending that such steps be taken. This coal order is in effect carrying out the order of the city council at their meeting on Tuesday evening last. However the order is not reported to be for the purpose of meeting any coal emergency in the future as other arrangements have been made and at present the coal situation seems to have settled itself in everything but price.

The power house superintendent stated that the quantity of coal contracted for from three different coal companies is ample and sufficient but that the quality is such that success in departmental business leaves for cancel the contract.

CAUSE OF WATER SHORTAGE.

Plant Closed Down in Order to Install New Pipes in Some of the Boilers.

It was not the big bugle pump that caused a shortage of water yesterday. It was the fact that it became necessary to replace several tubes in the boiler supplying steam to the pumps. This caused the management to shut down that plant.

When questioned as to why he did not notify the public through the press that a shut-down of fifteen hours would occur on Sunday, the power house superintendent explained that such notification would cause every household in the city to fill the tubs and bathtubs in the house with water and that such action would mean an increased demand that would cause a water shortage greater than that caused yesterday.

James H. Reid sued Robert Battry in the district court this morning for the sum of $150 alleged to be due on a promissory note. Judgment will be handed down by Justice Taylor at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

PROPERTY HOLDERSON NINTH STREET OBJECT TO REMOVAL OF TRACK

Railway Superintendent's Proposal to Switch Car Tracks to Eighth Meets with Opposition—Question Will Be Taken to Courts if Necessary

Not without running into injunctions, lawsuits, and political antagonism will the city administration move the street car track from Ninth street and Jasper avenue, as proposed by the city engineer. A statement by Superintendent Robert Knight, of the railway department, at a late afternoon meeting of the city council, stated that half a dozen property owners on Ninth street, who own property on the east side of the street, are objecting to the removal of the track. They are objecting to the removal of the track because it would mean the removal of the track from the street and the removal of the track from the street would mean the removal of the track from the street.
